

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Charles Scribner & Co. have published a "History of the Atlantic Telegraph," by Henry M. Field, D. brother of Mr. Cyrus Field. It describes with sufficient fullness and praiseworthy fidelity and spirit the origin and progress of the great enterprise now happily completed — a work which the author has entitled "the greatest of all his labors." The Duke was not that of instruction, but of surprise; those who gave instruction, the Duke being present when the lessons were given.

A memorial of the late John Kehle is in course of preparation by Mr. Savage of Winchester. It consists of a series of photographs "tracing the path of the reverend poet step by step from his birthplace in the little town of Fairford to his grave in the churchyard of Hurley." The photographs will be put into a volume, which is to be sold at a moderate price.

The author has spared no pains to render his history as thoroughly accurate as human infirmity permits any book to be. He has been for one or two years engaged upon it, and its most important parts have been submitted to the correction of the chief persons connected with the undertaking both in England and America. He describes succinctly and clearly the characteristics of the present cables, as well as of earlier ones, showing what substantial grounds exist for confidence that the wire just laid destined to a longer and more useful life than its unfortunate predecessor, and how much the recent improvements in the apparatus for signaling and deciphering messages must add to its efficiency. The narrative of Mr. Field's difficulties in carrying out his gigantic idea of the voyages and failures of successive cable expeditions; and of the final fortunate trip of the Great Eastern, is told in a simple and interesting manner. The book will amply repay perusal, and is well worth preserving.

"The Singing Pilgrim," by Philip Phillips (New-York and Cincinnati: Philip Phillips & Co.), is a music book for Sunday-schools, churches and families. It consists of three parts. The first contains hymns illustrative of the same passages of Christian experience as are illustrated in "The Pilgrim's Progress," to each page being appended a passage of Scripture, and a note condensed from Bunyan by the Rev. J. W. Whey, D. D. The second consists of a new collection of Sunday-school hymns and music, suitable for various occasions. The third comprises a selection of hymns for various purposes of Christian worship. The music is printed in a clear, neat type, and every piece is furnished with the necessary accompaniment.

D. Appleton & Co. have recently published "Taxation; its Levy and Expenditure, Past and Future; being an Inquiry into our Financial Policy." By S. Morton Petro. Hart. Although it deals more particularly with the financial system of Great Britain, the subject is one which is full of lessons for our own Government, and the reputation of the author, no less than the importance of the topic, will give it special interest in this country.

"In Vinculis; or, the Prisoner of War," by A. M. Reiley (Birchard & Co.), is a "Virginia Confederate's" narrative of his experiences in two Federal prisons, interspersed with reminiscences of the war, anecdotes of Southern Generals, &c. The violence and bad temper of the author will go far to invalidate whatever confidence a credulous disposition might naturally lead one to attach to his statements.

"Among the Guerrillas," by Edmund Kirke (Carlton), is in form the story of a boy-soldier; but its purpose is to exhibit "a series of pictures of Southern life and Southern people" in color so simple and yet so vivid as shall make the peculiar characteristics of the various classes of the South obvious to the most untrained understanding." This more serious object, however, is not allowed to overshadow the author's ambition to make a readable story, not only for boys and young men, but also for older persons who have an important part to play in the questions of social and political reconstruction which are now agitating the country. A prominent character in the tale is the famous Moby, to whose history and career chapter revised and corrected by the Colonel himself, is devoted.

"Papers from Overlook House" (J. B. Lippincott & Co.) is the title of a neat little volume of sketches and verses, written in a pleasant vein, and connected by a very slender thread of narrative. Though not remarkable for either depth or brilliancy, they are agreeable enough reading for odd moments of leisure.

LITERARY ITEMS.

HARTFORD PUBLISHING CO. have in press new volumes of poetry by Longfellow and Whittier. The title of the former is "The Flower-de-Luce" and of the latter "The Tent on the Beach." The same publishers have also in preparation new editions of Whittier's "Peter Williams" and of T. C. Hervey's "Poetical Works," editions of Longfellow's prose and poetry in the style of the "Puritan Pennant," illustrated editions of "Mysticism," "The Vision of Sir Launfal," and "Mand Merlin," a new volume of sketches by Grace Greenwood, "Red-Letter Days," a book for children, by Gail Hamilton, "A Book in the Forest" and "The Giraffe Hunter," by Mrs. Held; Grimm's "Gothics" with colored illustrations; and a new juvenile by Louis M. Alcott. They are also about to add to their series of Companion Poets, "Religious Poems," by Harriet Beecher Stowe.

William S. Spencer, Boston, has in press "The Life of Gottschall Ephraim Lessing," translated from the German of Adolf Stahr, Ph. D., professor of modern languages and literature in the university of Michigan; "The Heavenly Walker," by Ernest Naylor; "Katy Barton," a book for girls; and "Patriotism at Home, or the Young Invincibles," a book for boys.

Among the last announcements are "St. Nine," a novel by the author of "Beulah"; "Woman our Angel," a novel by A. S. Rose; "Heaven Courteous," by George H. Glever; "Mount Calvary," a series of familiar discourses by the Rev. Matthew Hale Smith, and "The Papacy," from the French of Abbé Guérin, with an introduction by Dr. Alfred Cleveland Coxe.

The Hon. George P. Marsh is contributing to "Edinburgh Contemporary," The Nation, & a series of miscellaneous observations on the character, composition and sources of the English language." He terms his articles "Notes on the New Edition of Webster's Dictionary," choosing that word as a basis for his remarks "because its wide circulation has made it accessible to all, and because, as it stands in this edition, its vocabulary is more copious, its etymologies more sound and satisfactory, and its definitions more accurate than any other English dictionary known to me." Mr. Marsh's "Introductory" paper appears in The Nation for August 1.

W. H. Crosby is decorated with "likenesses of the twelve Apostles of the Mormon Church." His picture, utterly unlike that of chief of the four Sons of God, is a tolerable portrait of Victor Hugo, and is described as "Hector Kimball," conveys no hint of the charming features that characterize apostles, but bears unmistakable resemblance to the late John Thibault. Is it possible that The Weekly has been victimized?

Crosby & Ainsworth will soon publish a new French Grammar and Vocabulary, by Edward H. Magill, A. M., sub-master in the Boston Latin school; and "The English of Shakespeare" in a Philological Commentary on his Julius Caesar, by Prof. G. L. Clark of Queen's College, Belfast, adapted to the use of the student, and the general reader by W. J. Rolfe, Master of the High School, Cambridge, Mass.

George Routledge & Sons, London, have in press "Robin Hood and his Merry Men," "Choice Thoughts from Shakespeare," "The Book of Familiar Quotations," "The Book of Homer, Wit, and Wisdom," "Wise Sayings of the Great and Good," "Golden Gleams from the Poets," "Howe Cook Apple," Eggs, Potatoes, and Rabbits, in one hundred-and-fifteen pages; "Horridge's Popular Natural History," by the Rev. G. Wood, M. A., a new edition, in one volume, with seven hundred illustrations; "Elton's Elton at School," by the author of "Erie Elton, the Lazy Boy"; "The Queen of Sealedy," a cheaper edition; "The Wits and Beaux of Society," a cheap edition, and other children's gift and toy books.

Newly will publish in London, early in September, "A Narrative of a Journey to Morocco," by the late Thomas Hodgkin, M. D., F. R. S., in one volume, imperial size, with chromo-higraphic illustrations.

To the series of Chronicles and Memorials published in England, under the direction of the Master of the Rolls, have just been added two volumes of what Archbishop Parker called the "Historia Minor of Matthew Paris," which was called by himself "Historia Anglicana." The work is edited by Sir Frederick Madden, and now for the first time, printed from a very complete copy of it, which is in the handwriting of the author, and is among the MSS. of the Old Royal Collection in the British Museum. Attention was first called to this text in 1856, by the Rev. Joseph Stevenson, in the Notes to his edition of Sir Robert Gray's "Scalacronica." Mr. Stevenson then said of it that it varied so much from the greater Chronicle printed by Wals, "as to assume the appearance of a distinct version, and a version, too, which, in many points, is fuller, stronger, and better than that already given."

Charlotte Florentine Clive, the elder of two Dowager Duchesses of Norfolk, who died last month in her 70th year, claims no record of notice as belonging to literature. Her noble lady was the author of a history of Norfolk, and a
